Workshop Description

This one-day workshop will introduce participants to one of the traditional craft methods of mold making, which has been used for centuries to produce marionettes, hand puppets, masks etc. In this workshop, participants will learn how to take their own sculpted form, make a mold and lay it up with papier-mâché. Because of drying times participants will learn the assembly process, finishing and painting on a pre-molded form prepared by Alexander.

About Alexander Mergold

Alexander Mergold, originally from the U.S.S.R, moved to Canada in 2008 after living in Israel for 17 years. He has been making dolls and marionettes for over 20 years. A virtuosic sculptor Alexander works with polymer and air-dry clays to create one of a kind characters inspired by literature and theatre and his own quirky view of the world.
