Do you like monsters? Do you like puppets? Do you like making things? How about making some GIANT MONSTER PUPPETS with us?

Help puppet artists James and Grey of The Bricoteer Puppetry Project piece together terrifying parts to form creepy monsters. Then we will all perform a spooky story, just in time for Hallowe'en! The puppets will be made out of reclaimed and recyclable materials (mostly newspaper). This will stretch your imagination and build eco-logic in your brains. Wear shoes and clothes in which you can move around easily. This workshop is also a party. Bring your music or sound effect audio files on CD. Healthy Hallowe'en-themed snacks will be provided: please let us know about any food sensitivities and restrictions.

Why newspaper? Puppet artists sometimes use newspaper to create maquettes of puppets when developing new work. Maquettes act as working models that allow artists to express, demonstrate, or test their concepts. Like a sketch in 3-D, maquettes allow artists to explore ideas quickly and inexpensively. They can also be enjoyable as an end in themselves and as a source of further inspiration.

So, join us and learn how to be a puppet artist!
